Youth Eco-Dress

Nancy Judd, principal of Recycle Runway has created a new recycled garment that will be made by youth across America and represent their commitment to environment stewardship!

The garment is a Scarlett O'Hara style dress created out of recycled paper link chains. Each thin strip of paper in the chain will bear the name and environmental commitment of the students that Ms. Judd works with around the country.

The Youth Eco-Dress will be exhibited in airports across the country, including the Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport. This exhibit will be up for 12 months and viewed by over 13 million people!
